

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

Case No.: 2:15-cv-01458-APG-VCF

Order Denying in Part Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment

[ECF No. 107]

Defendants

Plaintiff Abdul Howard filed this lawsuit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 against Bonnie Polley and several other defendants, alleging they violated his First, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendment rights while he was incarcerated at the Clark County Detention Center (CCDC). After screening, his First and Fourteenth Amendment claims were allowed to proceed against Polley, along with another claim against former defendant Peggy Martinez. The claims against Martinez have been dismissed, leaving Howard's claims against Polley as the only remaining claims in the case. Polley moved for summary judgment, arguing that there was no constitutional violation and that, even if there were, she did not personally participate in it, and she is entitled to qualified immunity. I deny the motion and order the parties to submit further briefing on the issue of qualified immunity.

Background

When inmates arrive at CCDC, they are screened to determine the safest module in which to house each person.¹ Christian religious services are offered in each housing module, allowing Christian inmates to attend services freely.² Muslim Jumu'ah services, however, are run as a

² ECF No. 108-8 at 4.

1 “program” offered in one location for inmates from all housing modules to attend.³ To 2 participate in Jumu’ah services, Muslim inmates at CCDC must submit a request and wait to be 3 screened, which sometimes takes several weeks.⁴ Christian and Jewish inmates are allowed to 4 participate in religious services without having to make a request and wait for screening.⁵

5 Howard, a Muslim inmate at CCDC, sues Polley, who is CCDC’s religious coordinator
6 and chaplain.⁶ He alleges that the way CCDC runs Jumu’ah services violates his First
7 Amendment right to free exercise by denying him access to religious services. He further alleges 8 that the program violates the Fourteenth Amendment’s Equal Protection Clause because 9 similarly-situated Christian and Jewish inmates do not have to wait to attend religious services.⁷
10 Polley moves for summary judgment on both of these claims, arguing that the program does not
11 violate Howard’s rights and that, even if it did, she did not personally participate in the violation
12 and she is entitled to qualified immunity.⁸

13 Discussion

14 A. Summary Judgment Standard

15 Summary judgment is appropriate when the pleadings and admissible evidence “show
16 there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the movant is entitled to judgment as a
17 matter of law.”⁹ When considering summary judgment, the court views all facts and draws all 18

19 ³ Id. at 5.

20 ⁴ ECF No. 107-1 at ¶ 9.

21 ⁵ ECF No. 108-8 at 4.

22 ⁶ ECF No. 7 at 3.

22 ⁷ ECF No. 7 at 5–7.

23 ⁸ ECF No. 107.

⁹ See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 330 (1986) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 56 (c)).

1 inferences in the light most favorable to the nonmoving party.¹⁰ If reasonable minds could differ
2 on material facts, summary judgment is inappropriate because its purpose is to avoid unnecessary
3 trial when the facts are undisputed, and the case must then proceed to the trier of fact.¹¹

4 If the moving party satisfies its burden by demonstrating the absence of any genuine issue
5 of material fact, the burden shifts to the party resisting summary judgment to “set forth specific 6 facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.”¹² The nonmoving party “must do more than 7 simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts”; he “must produce
8 specific evidence, through affidavits or admissible discovery material, to show that” there is a 9 sufficient evidentiary basis on which a reasonable fact finder could find in his favor.¹³

10 B. First Amendment Free Exercise

11 Prisoners retain their First Amendment rights, including the right to free exercise of 12 religion.¹⁴ But limitations on a prisoner’s free-exercise rights arise both from the fact of 13 incarceration and from valid penological objectives.¹⁵ Prison regulations alleged to infringe on 14 the religious-exercise right must be evaluated under the “reasonableness” test set forth in Turner

18 ¹⁰ Kaiser Cement Corp. v. Fishbach & Moore, Inc., 793 F.2d 1100, 1103 (9th Cir. 1986).

19 ¹¹ Warren v. City of Carlsbad, 58 F.3d 439, 441 (9th Cir. 1995); see also Nw. Motorcycle Ass’n
v. U.S. Dep’t of Agric., 18 F.3d 1468, 1471 (9th Cir. 1994).

20 ¹² Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 256 (1986); Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323.

21 ¹³ Bank of Am. v. Orr, 285 F.3d 764, 783 (9th Cir. 2002) (internal citations omitted); Bhan v.
NME Hosps., Inc., 929 F.2d 1404, 1409 (9th Cir. 1991); Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248–49.

22 ¹⁴ O’Lone v. Estate of Shabazz, 482 U.S. 342, 348 (1987).

23 ¹⁵ Id.; McElyea v. Babbitt, 833 F.2d 196, 197 (9th Cir. 1987); Hartmann v. Cal. Dep’t of Corr. &
Rehab., 707 F.3d 1114, 1122 (9th Cir. 2013) (Prisoners’ rights under the Free Exercise Clause are limited by “institutional objectives and the loss of freedom concomitant with incarceration”).

1 v. Safley.¹⁶ Turner set forth four factors to determine whether a prison regulation is reasonable:
2 (1) there must be a valid, rational connection between the prison regulation and the legitimate 3 government interest put forward to justify it; (2) whether alternative means of exercising the 4 right on which the regulation impinges remain open to inmates; (3) the impact that 5 accommodation of the asserted right will have on guards, other inmates, and the allocation of 6 prison resources; and (4) the absence of ready alternatives.¹⁷

7 Polley argues that the interest at issue here is institutional security.¹⁸ She notes that
8 CCDC is a temporary housing facility with a “transient” inmate population.¹⁹ Because there is a
9 “low number” of Muslim inmates and limited Imams available to preside over Jumu’ah services,
10 CCDC cannot hold services in each individual housing module like it does for Christian
11 services.²⁰ Because the weekly Jumu’ah service is centralized, inmates from any of CCDC’s
12 housing modules may attend, so CCDC has to screen the requests to attend the service to prevent 13 security issues that may arise if inmates housed separately come into contact at the service.²¹
14 Howard acquiesces to this logic in his deposition testimony. He understands why CCDC staff 15 monitors the program for safety and security and that it is important to do so.²² But Howard has 16
17

18 ¹⁶ Turner v. Safley, 482 U.S. 78, 89–91 (1987); O’Lone, 482 U.S. at 349; Freeman v. Arpaio, 125
19 F.3d 732, 736 (9th Cir. 1997), overruled on other grounds as recognized by Penwill v.
Holtgeerts, 386 F. App’x 665, 667 (9th Cir. 2010).

20 ¹⁷ Allen v. Toombs, 827 F.2d 563, 567 (9th Cir. 1987) (citing Turner, 482 U.S. at 89–91).

21 ¹⁸ ECF No. 107 at 4.

22 ¹⁹ Id.

²⁰ Id.

23 ²¹ Id.

²² ECF No. 107-4 at 13, 15.

1 not abandoned his Free Exercise claim. Instead, he focuses on the consequence of the policy: the
2 delay between an inmate's request to attend services and receiving permission to attend.²³

3 Howard argues there are questions of fact regarding (1) whether limiting access to 4 Jumu'ah services is related to the interest in security,²⁴ (2) what, if any, impact an
5 accommodation would make on prison operations,²⁵ and (3) potential alternatives to achieve
6 CCDC's interest.²⁶ Specifically, questions exist about the number of Muslim inmates and 7 available Imams,²⁷ which leaves open questions about alternatives available to CCDC, whether 8 multiple services could be made available, and whether inmates could be asked in their initial 9 screening whether they planned to attend Jumu'ah services.

10 In reply, Polley asserts that allowing inmates to attend services without additional 11 screening is unsafe and unreasonable.²⁸ She contends that the information from the initial intake 12 screening is "useless" in determining whether an inmate will pose a potential threat at the 13 centralized Jumu'ah services.²⁹ However, Polley does not state what information is included in 14 the intake screening and how the initial screening differs from the screening after the request is 15 made. Polley also fails to respond to Howard's suggestion that CCDC could hold multiple 16 Jumu'ah services utilizing multiple volunteer Imams.

19 ²³ ECF No. 108 at 4 n.1.

20 ²⁴ Id. at 4–5.

21 ²⁵ Id. at 6–7.

22 ²⁶ Id. at 7–8.

22 ²⁷ Id. at 4 (citing ECF No. 107-4 at 15, 108-4 at 4, 108-5 at 6).

23 ²⁸ ECF No. 109 at 4.

²⁹ Id. at 7.

1 Polley has not satisfied her burden of showing an absence of questions of fact related to
2 Howard's free exercise claim. She has not shown that there are not enough Imams available to
3 run multiple Jumu'ah services,³⁰ nor has she shown that it is impractical to ask inmates on intake
4 about attending Jumu'ah services. Polley asserts that the Muslim inmate population is too low to 5 hold multiple services but does not provide numbers to support that assertion. But determining 6 the reasonableness of the program requires a comparison between the Muslim and Christian
7 inmate populations and between the number of available leaders for the religious services. These 8 questions are relevant to the Turner factors. Accordingly, I deny summary judgment on this 9 claim.

10 C. Fourteenth Amendment Equal Protection

11 "Prisoners enjoy religious freedom and equal protection of the law subject to restrictions
12 and limitations necessitated by legitimate penological interests."³¹ "[P]rison officials cannot 13 discriminate against particular religions," and "must afford an inmate of a minority religion 'a 14 reasonable opportunity of pursuing his faith comparable to the opportunity afforded fellow
15 prisoners who adhere to conventional religious precepts.'"³² This does not require identical 16 facilities or personnel;³³ rather, prisons "must make good faith accommodation of the prisoners'
17 rights in light of practical considerations."³⁴

20 ³⁰ Neither party affirmatively shows the number of available Imams. Polley does not offer a
21 number (asserting only that the number is "limited"), while Howard attests to knowing of five 22 available Imams. ECF Nos. 107 at 4, 108-1 at ¶ 2.

22 ³¹ Freeman, 125 F.3d at 737.

22 ³² Id. (quoting Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 322 (1972)).

23 ³³ Cruz, 405 U.S. 822 n.2.

³⁴ Allen v. Toombs, 827 F.2d 563, 569 (9th Cir. 1987).

1 A plaintiff “must show that officials intentionally acted in a discriminatory manner” to 2 prevail on an equal protection claim.³⁵ Discriminatory intent can sometimes be inferred by the 3 mere fact of different treatment.³⁶ “To defeat summary judgment, therefore, [a plaintiff] ‘must 4 set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue’ as to whether he was afforded a 5 reasonable opportunity to pursue his faith as compared to prisoners of other faiths and that such 6 conduct was intentional.”³⁷

7 Polley argues that CCDC’s policy does not violate the equal protection clause because 8 the policy is necessary to achieve the legitimate interest in institutional security.³⁸ She gives the 9 same explanation discussed above—that the additional screening is necessary to ensure security
10 at the centralized service with inmates from all housing modules in attendance.³⁹ Howard
11 responds that there is an issue of material fact about Polley’s discriminatory intent.⁴⁰ While 12 Polley asserts that there is no policy maker for religious programs, as religious coordinator she is 13 tasked with planning, directing, and supervising all aspects of the institution’s religious 14 programs.⁴¹ Howard contends that Polley’s excuse that her department does not run the Jumu’ah
15 services or the waiting list is pretext for her discriminatory intent.⁴² Howard argues that there are

18
19 ³⁵ Freeman, 125 F.3d at 737.

20 ³⁶ Sischo-Nownejad v. Merced Cmty. Coll. Dist., 934 F.2d 1104, 1112 (9th Cir. 1991).

21 ³⁷ Freeman, 125 F.3d at 737 (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 56 (a)).

22 ³⁸ ECF No. 107 at 8.

23 ³⁹ Id.

⁴⁰ ECF No. 108 at 9.

⁴¹ ECF No. 108-9 at 3.

⁴² ECF No. 108 at 10.

1 facts to support the assertion that Polley was motivated by discriminatory animus and not
2 institutional security in designing the Jumu'ah services program.⁴³

3 Polley has not shown an absence of disputed facts related to this claim. Questions of fact
4 remain regarding the practical considerations upon which Polley relies. Polley asserts that the 5 reason to distinguish between Muslim and Christian inmates is based on the number of Muslim
6 inmates and available Imams to run services. But Polley has not presented evidence as to the 7 number of Imams or Muslim inmates at CCDC. Similarly, Howard contends that there is no
8 reason for the additional screening because inmates are screened for safety issues upon intake
9 and interest in Jumu'ah services could easily be included in that screening. In response, Polley
10 merely asserts that doing so would be "impractical." But she does not identify the difference 11 between the screenings and what would be impractical about adding additional questions during 12 the intake screening process. Accordingly, I deny Polley's motion for summary judgment as to 13 this claim.

14 D. Personal Participation

15 A defendant is liable under § 1983 "only upon a showing of personal participation by a 16 defendant."⁴⁴ "A supervisor is only liable for constitutional violations of his subordinates if the 17 supervisor participated in or directed the violations, or knew of the violations and failed to 18 prevent them. There is no respondeat superior liability under § 1983."⁴⁵ "A person deprives
19 another 'of a constitutional right, within the meaning of section 1983, if he does an affirmative
20
21

22 ⁴³ Id.

23 ⁴⁴ Taylor v. List, 880 F.2d 1040, 1045 (9th Cir. 1989).

⁴⁵ Id.

1 act, participates in another's affirmative acts, or omits to perform an act which he is legally
2 required to do that causes the deprivation of which [the plaintiff complains].”⁴⁶

3 Polley argues that Howard has not alleged she personally participated in the alleged 4 violation of Howard's rights.⁴⁷ Howard responds that Polley, as the religious coordinator, is 5 responsible for supervising all aspects of the religious programs. He contends that by not 6 responding to his complaints about the waiting period and by developing the plan to have 7 Jumu'ah services run as a “program,” Polley personally contributed to the violation of his 8 rights.⁴⁸

9 Polley has not shown an absence of material fact as to this issue. In her affidavit Polley
10 does not deny personal involvement in the implementation of the Jumu'ah services as a program.
11 A reasonable jury could find that she personally participated in a violation of Howard's rights
12 based on her position at CCDC. Howard has not claimed Polley is liable under respondeat
13 superior, and Polley does not present evidence that she oversees individuals who actually 14 participated in the alleged violation. Polley does not aver that someone else made the decision to 15 run Jumu'ah services as a program. It is unclear from the parties' briefing who is responsible for 16 the program, but Howard has raised a genuine dispute as to whether Polley is responsible. This 17 question of fact precludes summary judgment on this issue.

18 D. Qualified Immunity

19 To allay the “risk that fear of personal monetary liability and harassing litigation will 20 unduly inhibit officials in the discharge of their duties,” government officials performing

21
22 ⁴⁶ Leer v. Murphy, 844 F.2d 628, 633 (9th Cir. 1991) (emphasis in original) (quoting Johnson v. Duffy, 588 F.2d 740, 743 (9th Cir. 1978)).

23 ⁴⁷ ECF No. 107 at 9.

⁴⁸ ECF No. 108 at 11 n.2.

1 discretionary functions may be entitled to qualified immunity for claims made under § 1983.⁴⁹

2 Qualified immunity protects “all but the plainly incompetent or those who knowingly violate the 3 law.”⁵⁰ In ruling on a qualified immunity defense, I make a two-pronged inquiry into whether 4 (1) the defendant violated the plaintiff’s constitutional right and (2) whether that right was 5 clearly established.⁵¹ I may consider these two prongs in any order.⁵²

6 A right is clearly established if “it would be clear to a reasonable officer that his conduct
7 was unlawful in the situation he confronted.”⁵³ I make this inquiry “in light of the specific
8 context of the case, not as a broad general proposition.”⁵⁴ An officer will be entitled to qualified 9 immunity even if she was mistaken in her belief that her conduct was lawful, so long as that 10 belief was reasonable.⁵⁵

11 The plaintiff bears the burden of showing that the right at issue was clearly established.⁵⁶
12 But a plaintiff need not establish that a court previously declared the defendant’s behavior
13 unconstitutional if it would be clear from prior precedent that the conduct was unlawful.⁵⁷ A 14 plaintiff does not have to cite a case that is “directly on point, [but] existing precedent must have 15
16

17 ⁴⁹ Anderson v. Creighton, 483 U.S. 635, 638 (1987)

18 ⁵⁰ Malley v. Briggs, 475 U.S. 335, 341 (1986).

19 ⁵¹ Sorrels v. McKee, 290 F.3d 969 (9th Cir. 2002).

20 ⁵² Pearson v. Callahan, 555 U.S. 223, 236 (2009).

21 ⁵³ Wilkins v. City of Oakland, 350 F.3d 949, 954 (9th Cir. 2003) (quoting Saucier v. Katz, 533
U.S. 194, 202 (2001) (emphasis omitted)).

22 ⁵⁴ Saucier, 533 U.S. at 200.

23 ⁵⁵ Wilkins, 350 F.3d at 955.

⁵⁶ Sorrels, 290 F.3d at 969.

⁵⁷ Blueford v. Prunty, 108 F.3d 251, 254 (9th Cir. 1997).

1 placed the . . . constitutional question beyond debate.”⁵⁸ While there are rare cases where
2 unlawfulness is obvious without case law, typically a body of relevant law is necessary to show a
3 right is clearly established.⁵⁹ The United States Supreme Court has cautioned against defining 4 “clearly established law at a high level of generality, [because] doing so avoids the crucial 5 question whether the official acted reasonably in the particular circumstances that he or she 6 faced.”⁶⁰

7 The parties’ briefs have not sufficiently addressed the qualified immunity issue. Neither
8 Howard nor Polley identifies what specific rights are at issue and thus also do not adequately
9 address whether those rights are clearly established. Without argument from the parties clearly 10 and specifically defining the rights at issue for both of Howard’s constitutional claims, I cannot 11 decide the qualified-immunity question. Accordingly, I order the parties to submit supplemental 12 briefing on this issue.

13 For the First Amendment claim, Howard must first define the right at issue. He must go
14 beyond the broad category of constitutional religious rights and identify the specific problem
15 with CCDC’s policy (i.e., is it the delay while waiting for screening or is it the fact that Muslim 16 inmates must request screening at all or is it both?). Then, Howard must point to a specific case, 17 body of case law, or other authority that existed before the actions took place that would have put 18 a reasonable officer in Polley’s position on notice that her actions would have violated the 19 specifically defined right at issue.

21 ⁵⁸ Hamby v. Hammond, 821 F.3d 1085, 1090 (9th Cir. 2016) (citing Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 563 U.S.
22 731, 740 (2011)).

23 ⁵⁹ Brosseau v. Haugen, 543 U.S. 194, 199 (2004) (per curiam).

⁶⁰ Plumhoff v. Rickard, 572 U.S. 765, 134 S. Ct. 2012, 2023 (2014) (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

1 For the equal protection claim, Howard must do the same thing. First, he must define the 2 right at issue, going beyond general statements of constitutional principles (again, is it the fact
3 that Muslims must be screened while Christians are not, is it that Muslims must wait to attend
4 services while Christians do no, is it that Muslims face punishment for not attending services
5 while Christians do not, or some combination of these issues?). Once he has identified the 6 specific right at issue, he must then identify a case, body of case law, or other authority that 7 would have put a reasonable officer on notice that her actions violated that right.

8 Howard must file his supplemental brief within 30 days of the entry of this order, and 9 Polley must file her response within 30 days of Howard's filing. There will be no further 10 briefing absent an order from me.

11 Conclusion

12 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that defendant Bonnie Polley's motion for summary
13 judgment (ECF No. 107) is denied in part.

14 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff Abdul Howard must file a supplemental brief
15 on the issue of qualified immunity within 30 days of the entry of this order. Polley must file her
16 response to Howard's brief within 30 days thereafter. There will be no further briefing absent 17 court order.

18 DATED this 6th day of November, 2018.

19
20
21 ANDREW P. GORDON
22 UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE
23